

Alejandro Díaz Domínguez

Biography

He has a PhD in Political Science from Vanderbilt University and is a graduate of the ITAM in the same major, and he also has Philosophy studies. His research goes from public opinion, religion, and politics to research methodology. He has had a long career in the public sector, particularly at the National Elections Institute, and he has done most of his teaching at the ITAM. He stands out for his seminal research on the impact of religious training and participation on political opinions and behavior in Mexico and Latin America, which appears in a series of publications. His analytical ability, his warmth, and his professional experience are special attributes that help him strengthen the team in the Academic and Research Department.
